UNDERTAKER OF GENIUS.

A Novel Incident Got Chicago Students Out of an Unpleasant Situation.

"He is a smart man, is that undertaker. Say, he's got a brain in his skull, sure."

This is the way in which students at the College of Physicians and Surgeons on the West side express their admiration for a certain undertaker who got them out of an unpleasant predicament, reports the Inter Ocean.

Patrick McAndrews, who lived somewhere near State and Forty-second streets, was admitted to the county hospital about three weeks ago, suffering from a complication of diseases. He died soon after reaching the white cot in the "hopeless" ward, and his body was duly laid away to await the coming of his relatives. Fifteen days passed, and nobody came to call for the corpse of Patrick McAndrews. Then, as is the custom, the body was given to the College of Physicians and Surgeons, and arrangements were planned for a dissection.

The lecture for which the dead McAndrews was to furnish material called for the head, chest and arms of an adult male. Attendants in charge of the "subjects" severed McAndrews' body at the waist, and took the upper half to the dissecting-room. Here the ghastly section of the dead humanity was laid upon the table, covered with a sheet, and left to await the coming of the class and lecturer. The lower half of the body was immediately burned, and in two hours' time all that remained of McAndrews was the half upon the table, waiting for the scalpel.

Just as the lecture was beginning word was brought that McAndrews' relatives had appeared and claimed the body. An undertaker from State and Forty-first street was already at the door, and preparations were being made for the funeral at McAndrews' home. No objection was made by the college authorities to the prompt surrender of the body, but a thorough search failed to locate the lower half of the remains. The attendant who had burned the missing portion told what he had done, and there was consternation around the college.

At this point the ingenious undertaker came to the rescue. "Give me the upper half of the body," said he. "Then get me about 80 pounds of bricks." The bricks were brought and the lower part of the coffin was filled with them. McAndrews' upper section was put in place, and the undertaker drove away.

A day later McAndrews' funeral took place with all propriety, and none but the undertaker and those who helped him at the college knew just what the coffin contained. Out on the West side, however, where students congregate, the "half man" is talked about, and much admiration is expressed for the genius of the undertaker.

TROUBLE WITH DOCUMENTS.

Public Officers and Collectors Become Overstocked with Old Books and Papers.

What to destroy and what to save in the way of old documents, newspapers and other publications, has become a question requiring most serious thought. One of the committees of congress bears this peculiar title: "Disposition of Useless Papers in the Executive Departments," and another: "Examination and Disposition of Documents." The names of the committees suggest their duties, says Youth's Companion.

Not only public officers, but the directors of libraries and museums, are often puzzled by the accumulation of matter issuing from modern printing presses. A bill was recently introduced in parliament to enable the trustees of the British museum to distribute or destroy "valueless printed matter in their possession."

To this proposal a Shakespearean scholar of prominence objected. He argued that no one could discriminate between what may be valuable and what valueless for the historical investigator of the future. Who knows but that the trade circular, the country newspaper, or the street song, may throw a most important light several hundred years hence upon some mooted question of our present life?

This discussion has an interest to a wider circle than librarians and public officers. The man who attempts no collection of books or papers is compelled to choose each day what disposition he shall make of the knowledge that comes to him; for the human brain and memory are storehouses of limited dimensions, and time is short. To learn what to lay up in memory, what to omit and what to disregard, is an important part of all education.

CONVICTS IN PARLIAMENT.

There Have Been Many Members Who Have Served Terms in Prison.

Michael Davitt is the most conspicuous of the present members of the British parliament who have occupied seats in that body after having served terms of penal servitude, says the Chicago Chronicle. Mr. Davitt's term was 15 years. His experience is by no means exceptional. J. F. X. O'Brien, one of the members for Cork city, was in 1867 sentenced to be hanged, drawn and quartered, a sentence that was subsequently commuted to penal servitude for life. James O'Connor, who sits for West Wicklow, was condemned to seven years' penal servitude in 1865 and spent several years in convict prisons. In 1848 John Martin was removed from the dock in Green street courthouse, Dublin, to a penal cell in Newgate prison, preparatory to undergoing a sentence of ten years' transportation. Mr. Martin was afterward, from 1870 to 1875, member for Meath, and it was on his death in the latter year that Mr. Parnell stepped into parliament for the first time as his successor in the representation of Meath. Dr. Kevin Izod O'Doherty, who sat for North Meath for a little time after the 1885 election, was, like Mr. Martin, sentenced in 1848 to ten years' transportation.

A SONORA COMPANY

Company Which Possesses Some Promising Properties.

Description of the Mines Owned—Near Dodge & Company's Properties.

The names of the company's properties are the Conforme, the Wostenholm, the Nacozari Copper Queen, the Santa Clara and the Don Genaro.

The Conforme contains silver, gold and silica, and is well situated for rapid development, there being good wagon roads near by and a steam road shortly to run right close to it; there is a ten-stamp mill conveniently near, and the big smelter of Phelps, Dodge & Co. is but four miles distant.

The Wostenholm is located in close proximity to some of the highest grade silver and gold properties in the district, and promises to be a rich producer at an early date. A railroad will soon be running near by, and there are a number of excellent wagon roads now in the neighborhood.

The "Nacozari Copper Queen" is a copper mine, and the work already done on it has been fruitful of rich results, the ore being of high grade in each instance. It is located close to the famous "Pilares" mine of the Phelps, Dodge & Co.'s properties, which are said to be fabulously wealthy, and there are all the materials and facilities at hand necessary for speedy development of the property. Considerable money will be spent in bringing this deposit to a substantial paying basis.

The "Santa Clara" property is a lead and silver mine of great richness, the deposit being large and well developed, running from 80 to 160 ounces in silver, and 15 to 50 per cent lead. As soon as the railroad reaches it, which will be very shortly, the output will be large enough to justify the erection of a smelter. The company are justly proud of this property.

The "Don Genaro" contains large bodies of free milling gold ore, as also high grade silver and lead, and the property is in fine condition. It includes several ancient mines on which considerable work was done by the Aztec and Jesuit missionaries, and an abundance of ore is in sight. The mine is splendidly situated, in the vicinity of wagon roads, railroad, water and timber, and plenty of pasture land. The work of development will be speedily pushed and this ancient and valuable property advanced to the rank it deserves in the mineral bearing property list.

All these properties will be reached by a railroad in the next year and a half, it will soon be completed as far as Nacozari. The beginning of the road is at Bisbee, Arizona. It will run close to a large number of other mining properties besides those mentioned, and will also tap a region well adapted to agriculture and cattle raising. A second road is also projected, which will open up the rich pine forests to the woodman's axe and the hum of the saw.—Oasis.

Mr. Jos. Billinsley, formerly of Patagonia, Santa Cruz county, who went home to Georgia some months ago, has returned to Arizona, having arrived at Bisbee Sunday last. Mr. B. will take charge of one of the bridge gangs on the extension of the Arizona & South Eastern railway, now in course of construction, but before going to work will probably visit his old friends in Santa Cruz county.

Mr. James Keene, relief agent for Wells, Fargo & Co., who was running the express office at Benson while Mr. Roemer was out campaigning, returned to Phoenix last week. Mr. Roemer was elected to the legislature from Cochise county, and when he goes over to Phoenix in January to take his seat Mr. Keene will probably be at Benson in his place again.

Charles Harris begs to announce that he is continuing his business of tailoring and repairing at short notice at his residence in Tombstone canyon this side of the Castle Rock. That he is now in a position to make clothes and to repair and clean them at the cheapest rates and invites the attention of the public to his fine stock of fall and winter goods. sl2-tf

Clothing Matters

We are better equipped than ever to take proper care and give more perfect satisfaction in our Men's Clothing Department. To this end we have now in our steady employ a Tailor, whose sole business it is to remedy any defect or misfit, no matter how slight; to see that there is a just-rightness about every garment that leaves the department. This makes satisfaction doubly sure, whether you pick out a suit from our stock, or are more exacting—as you've a right to be—about a made-to-order suit.

In this connection we might add that we are prepared to press and clean clothes—properly, satisfactorily, economically.

Trouser Lengths

One hundred and some odd pieces of woollens in trouser lengths from which to make selections. There's quite a difference between selecting trousers from small samples and full lengths. No chance of mistaking the quality or getting a false idea of the pattern. No such liberal stock of piece goods has ever before been shown in Bisbee. No two patterns alike that means exclusiveness; not much to pay—that's economy; no time like now—that means having the full assortment to choose from.

Ves-Twos

It was a clever man who thought out Ves-Two. The idea is so clever it has been patented. Ves-Two is two vests in one; a reversible, turn either side out, fancy vest. One side is double breasted, the other single breasted. Fancy worsteds and silk vestings, each side strikingly different from the other. And the Ves-Two costs no more than you usually pay for one vest. We would suggest that you see these Ves-Twos anyway. From $4 to $7.50.
